FLYING HIGH

"Now, children," Mother Bird cautioned Bertie Bird and Brother Billie one fine sunny afternoon, "you must be very careful with your little cousin, Chubby. Remember he still hasn't learned to fly."

"If he wouldn't eat so much," Bertie observed gloomily, "he might at least be able to get his feet off the ground!" He let out a little sigh. "We will never be able to have any adventures with Chubby hanging around. We're...we're ground-bound, that's just what we are!"

"Cheer up!" Billie whispered. "Maybe we can teach him to fly!"

"You're right!" Bertie exclaimed, his whole little face lighting up. "And since he likes to eat so much, I know just what to use for bait!"

After Mother Bird had left Chubby in their care, Bertie approached his plump little cousin enthusiastically. "Well now, Chubby," he said brightly, "Billie and I have a surprise for you! We're going to teach you how to fly!"

Chubby's mouth was so full of the nuts and berries he had brought along in a little sack that he could hardly speak. He shook his head vehemently. "Uh-uh!" he protested. "Can't do it."

"Nonsense!" Billie said firmly. "We'll have you up in the air in no time!" He frowned impatiently. "For pete's sake," he cried, "can't you stop eating for just one moment and listen to me?"

Chubby rolled his eyes heavenward. "I get so hungry," he sighed. "There's quite a lot of me to fill up, you know!"

"I know!" Billie groaned. He turned to Bertie. "I give up," he said in despair.

"Not so fast!" Bertie Bird twinkled brightly.

"We haven't tried my idea yet, you know!" Very quickly, he snatched the big bag of nuts and berries away from his cousin. Then he soared through the air and laid the treasure on the highest branch of a nearby tree. "Come and get it, Chubby!" he called out merrily.

Chubby burst into tears. "Give me back my food!" he wailed. "I'll starve to death right before your very eyes!"

"We'll give it back to you," Billie said reassuringly, "if you can't make it yourself. All we want you to do is try!"

Chubby eyed him cunningly. "All right," he said, and he gave a feeble little leap into the air. "Oof!" he grunted as he landed with a thud. "See what I mean?"

Bertie Bird was about to retort, when suddenly his little ears perked up. "It's Howard Hawk!" he gasped in alarm. "What shall we do?"

"Hide Chubby under those leaves," Billie shouted, "and let's run for help!"

With Chubby safely concealed, they rose into the air, but Howard Hawk was faster. Clutching one little bluebird under each wing, he took off. Suddenly, he spied the sack of nuts and berries on the tree branch. "Well, what do you know?" he cackled. "Someone's left me a snack!" Just as he was about to dive in, he let out a terrible yell. "OWOW!" he screamed. And, dropping Bertie and Billie, he raced away.

It was then they saw Chubby with the sack of nuts and berries in his mouth. "You're flying!" Bertie cried out happily. "And you saved our lives, too!"

"I bite quite hard!" Chubby said smugly. Then he grinned. "After all, I've had a great deal of practice, you know!"

CRIME FIGHTING MONSTER

Don Richardson
Boring, Oregon

The yellow side of his face gives off a powerful heat, such as the sun's rays, to melt objects. The eye on that side of the face has a paralyzing beam.

The ear on the red side of the head gives off sound waves and the eye can hypnotize its victims.

The green section of the body makes him able to swim faster than a fish and his gill can be seen on the side of his neck. The hand on that side has suction-cups on the finger-ends which are very powerful. The arm on the other side of the chest has a wing which makes it possible for him to fly very fast.

The orange leg is able to send out fire, as a flame-thrower.

The brown leg is jet propelled, making him able to travel through the air faster than the speed of light.

FIRE BREATHING MONSTER

Blows down houses. Burns towns.
Can fly at 199 miles per hour.
